

Using a Trap Divider (also known as a trap fork)

The Trap Fork, or Trap Divider, tool is used to create a temporary barrier in the trap, so you can open the trap without the cat escaping! This is most often used if you have to hold the cat overnight before or after surgery. It is ESSENTIAL that the cat has water when held overnight in a trap! You can also give them food this way.

Insert the trap divider sideways (so the prongs are parallel to the ground). Do not insert it straight down on the trap (so the prongs are perpendicular to the ground).

The trap fork should go all way through one side and out the other for a secure barrier. You should see the prongs sticking out the far side like in the image below.

The trap fork should be inserted between the cat and the trap door! Once the trap fork is secure, you can open the door to add food and water to the trap for your cat.
